

MEMORANDUM

October 6, 2016

Dear FIU family,

As we make final preparations for the arrival of Hurricane Matthew, I want to remind you to take every step necessary to be ready, monitor local news and don't take any risks with your personal safety. Hunker down and stay safe.

As anyone who lived through Hurricane Andrew knows, hurricanes are extremely dangerous and must be taken seriously!

Please take care of yourself, your family, your friends and neighbors and remember to contact your FIU family as soon as possible after the storm has passed. We want to know that everyone is safe. Remember that the aftermath of a storm can be just as dangerous as the storm itself. Avoid downed power lines, debris on the roads, flooding and other storm-related hazards.

Thinking of my FIU family,
